Four-day heat wave spell ends

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KARACHI. The sea breeze is expected to return to the city from today as the four-day heat wave came to an end on June 1.

The Met Office had forecasted a three-day heat wave in the city from May 29 to May 31, during this period temperatures exceeded 42 degrees Celsius and sea breezes remained inactive.

A spokesperson from the Pakistan Meteorological Department (PMD) stated that there are no chances of new heat wave in the metropolis for the next 15 days.

The heat wave, which began on May 29, witnessed temperatures rising to 41.5 degrees Celsius on the first day, with humidity levels reaching 50 per cent, intensifying the heat's effect.

The spokesperson further mentioned that in the upcoming days, the city is expected to experience temperatures between 34 and 35 degrees.

On Saturday, the maximum temperature in the city was recorded at 38.4 degrees Celsius, with humidity levels at 53 per cent.
